ROCKET BOMB
LOSSES BARED
BY CHURCHILLROBOTS KILL 2752
AND WOUND 8000
IN 3 WEEKS

BY TOM YARBROUGH
London, July 6 (AP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill, in a statement which he described as "brutally frank," told the world today that German flying bombs in three weeks have killed 2,752 persons, seriously injured about 8,000, and have done extensive damage, primarily in London, which he disclosed as the previously-censored but obvious target of the enemy weapon.

This was the toll from 2,754 of the winged missiles—an average of one death per bomb—but "it would be a mistake to underestimate the serious character of this particular form of attack," Churchill said in a lengthy statement to the House of Commons, which had demanded it.

He raised the possibility that London might be attacked in the future by giant rocket bombs of a different type, on which the Germans have been working.

Speaking without his usual oratorical sparkle, Churchill did not try to sugar-coat the hard facts, did not claim to have the "answer" to the flying bomb, and promised only that "everything humanly possible" was being done to combat it.

BY WES GALLAGHER

London, Friday, July 7 (AP)—More flying bombs smashed into the London area last night after a lull of several hours and while rescuers still dug for victims from Thursday morning's barrage—some of them mill workers trapped under 50 tons of debris.

The air ministry said there were casualties but less damage from the morning attack, and that defenders had one of their best days by downing "a large proportion" of the robots.

Grim Londoners are paying in blood to watch the birth of a new era in air power—the flying bomb now and perhaps later the giant rocket bomb—in the opinion of many veteran airmen.

The death and damage the flying bombs now are doing are only a fraction of the dreadful implications they carry. From the time that was begun, they have been won by killing enough of the enemy to break his will to fight, and robot weapons of the future conceivably will be able to accomplish this end.

The best information indicates that the flying, jet-propelled bomb has a big brother, a rocket bomb, which carries five or more tons of explosives up to a height of 40,000 feet, whence it drops straight down. A big launching site, captured at Cherbourg, was designed for this weapon, and it was aimed at London. Five tons of explosive dropping 40,000 feet probably would destroy any building—even a skyscraper.

Detroit, July 6 (AP)—A spokesman for the Detroit regional office of the War Production Board said tonight that Michigan automotive manufacturers would go to Washington July 14 for a conference which is expected to formulate the first industry-wide program for reconversion to civilian production.

Carrier Task
Force Sinks
5 Jap Ships

BY CHARLES M. MCMURTRY
U. S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, July 6 (AP)—The sinking of five more Japanese ships and destruction of nine more planes in the Bonin Islands during a Fourth of July foray by an American carrier task force was disclosed today by Adm. Chester H. Nimitz.

This brought to 41 the total enemy ships sent down by carrier planes and raised Nipponese air losses to 835 since June 10 when the Fifth U. S. fleet moved into the Marianas to pave the way for invasion of Saipan.

Today's communiqué made the enemy's total losses in the Bonin-Volcano operation on Independence Day (East longitude; July 3, U. S. time) 10 ships definitely sunk, six probably sunk and at least 21 damaged.

Thousands of Japanese soldiers today faced liquidation by American weapons as they huddled for the final stand in the northern tip of Saipan island. Few were expected to surrender.

Every cave, every ridge, sheltered Nipponese troops. With them were many thousands of civilians, all compressed into a tiny area by the American conquerors of the island that soon may base bomber raids on Japan itself.

The cornered Japanese know they can't stop the Yanks, reported Howard Handelman in a front-line dispatch. He represents the combined Allied press.

The final cleanup is expected to be followed by swift American moves into other enemy islands. Adm. Chester H. Nimitz himself forecast such action last night. He promised "constant, unrelenting pressure" on the enemy.

TOKYO'S ISLAND
BASES FLANKEDAmerican Troops Occupy
Manim To Aid Drive
On Noemfoor

Advance Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Friday, July 7 (AP)—United States troops have occupied Manim island off American-occupied Noemfoor island, headquarters announced today.

Manim was seized by July 5 without opposition. Its occupation provides a flank position for the one remaining Japanese-held airbase on Noemfoor. That airbase, Namber, is the present objective of U. S. forces driving across Noemfoor, off North Dutch New Guinea.

The two other Noemfoor airbases—Kamiri and Komasoran—already are in American hands. A Japanese counter attack on Noemfoor was repulsed, headquarters reported.

Allied air raiders sank three small Japanese vessels and damaged one, continuing their widespread attacks against Nipponese shipping in waters near New Guinea. Sixteen barges also have been sunk or damaged.

The Noemfoor invasion began Sunday when American forces landed after crossing the encircling reef. Kamiri airbase was captured in less than two hours. Airborne troops augmented the original invading force and Komasoran airstrip was taken July 4.

Noemfoor island guards the entrance to Geelvink Bay and contains air bases within 800 miles of the Philippines.

Slim Hope Remains
For 64 Men Sealed
In Mine By Blaze

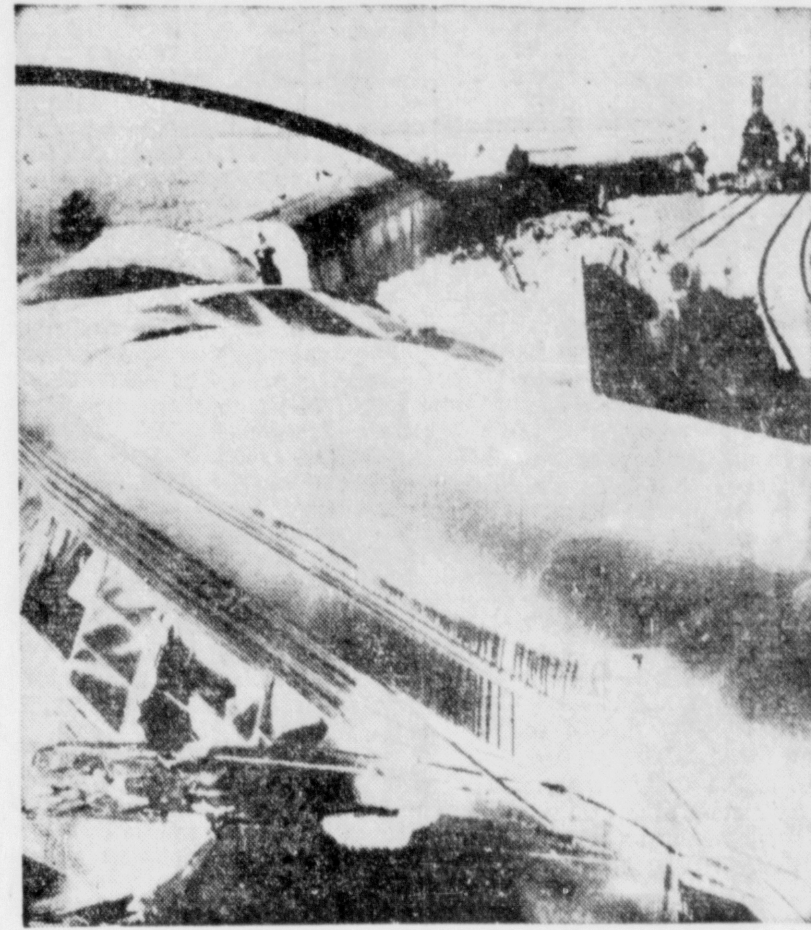

Bellair, O., July 6 (AP)—A faint hope for the rescue of 64 men sealed by a fiery inferno deep in Powhatan mine was raised tonight with plans to sink a shaft, 9 inches in diameter, through 350 feet of earth.

High speed drills were rushed here to bore directly down to the men after rescue workers and mine inspection officials gave up hope of reaching them through the regular mine shaft and the pit was ordered sealed to subdue a fire that broke out yesterday.

Rescue workers felt there was a bare chance they would find life when the bit breaks into a mine tunnel containing the men. Some officials expressed fear they would find death only; but the narrow shaft was the only way to know for sure.

HOPKINS RETURNS

Washington, July 6 (AP)—Harry L. Hopkins, recovered from a long siege of ill health, resumed today his White House duties as special assistant to his close friend, President Roosevelt. It was Hopkins' first visit to his office in six months.

DeGaulle And Roosevelt
Meeting To Smooth Out
French And U.S. Friction

Washington, July 6 (AP)—General Charles De Gaulle and President Roosevelt clasped hands at the White House and exchanged war greetings today at a meeting preliminary to man-to-man conferences aimed at smoothing out frictions in French-American relations.

"My, I'm glad to see you," was Mr. Roosevelt's welcome. Arriving by airplane in mid-afternoon, the tall leader of the French national committee was accorded a welcome such as has been given few foreign dignitaries not classed as heads of state.

The high command of the army and navy greeted him while he stepped from his plane while a 17-gun salute—in accord with his military rank—boomed out from a battery of cannon.

Then the French general was whisked by automobile to the White House where President Roosevelt and members of the cabinet were waiting in the diplomatic reception room.

When De Gaulle entered, the president was seated before a huge fireplace. Standing behind the chief executive was his daughter, Mrs. Anna Boettiger.

Their greeting over, the general was presented to Secretary of State Hull who said, "Welcome—glad to have you with us."

De Gaulle appeared only slightly fatigued by his air journey. Speaking powerfully in English, which is difficult for him, he declared, on arrival, "I salute and I pay my tribute to all those men and women who are relentlessly working for the war and those brave American boys, soldiers, sailors and airmen, who are fighting abroad against our common enemy."

"The whole French people are thinking of you and salute you Americans, our friends."

"The war is going well and when the Germans and Japanese are downed, the world will have to be organized for freedom and peace."

"Our ardent desire is that the United States and France continue working together in every way as today our fighting men are marching together to the common victory."

Lansing, July 6 (AP)—Governor Kelly appealed tonight to the people of Michigan in a radio broadcast (Michigan network) to give him Auditor General Vernon J. Brown as the Republican nominee for lieutenant governor and his running mate in the November election campaign.

Kelly's text refrained from mentioning the present Republican incumbent, Lieutenant Governor Eugene C. Keyes, whose defeat the governor seeks in Tuesday's primary election. Kelly made no mention of the feud that has existed between him and Keyes through their administrations, concentrating instead on praise of Brown's background of accomplishment.

"I sincerely believe it will be a worthwhile contribution to better government if we recognize the importance of the office of lieutenant governor and nominate and elect the right man to fill this office," Kelly declared. "I see it by nominating Vernon J. Brown for lieutenant governor next Tuesday."

He described Brown as a "capable, rugged, honest individualist" who also is "a great team player" in his relations with other officials in seeking solutions to governmental problems. He said Brown would bring to the office of lieutenant governor a background of 30 years of public service, and be capable of taking a post of "second in command" in government.

A coroner's jury Wednesday night returned a verdict of accidental death at the conclusion of an inquest into the shooting.

REDS NEARING
WILNO, BALTIC
GATEWAY CITYRUSSIANS ADVANCE
ALL ALONG GREAT

BY RUSSELL LANDSTROM
London, Friday, July 7 (AP)—Soviet troops were reported by the Berlin radio early today to be within 10 miles of the Baltic gateway of Wilno (Vilna) and the Russians themselves announced important advances all along the central front now stretching 350 miles north from newly captured Kowel in southern Poland.

The Moscow radio said the Germans in Wilno, big rail center in the northern neck of pre-war Poland, were threatened with the same kind of debacle they suffered in the White Russian capital of Minsk.

Enemy Evacuates
All the reserves that the Nazi command could muster were being thrown into the battle, Russian reports said, but according to the Moscow radio, the situation was imminent and the Germans were making preparations to evacuate even while waging a desperate delaying fight.

In a dispatch from Moscow, Associated Press Correspondent Eddy Gilmore called the capture of Kowel the commencement of "a great new Red army thrust in the direction of Pinsk and Brest Litovsk" and the German radio itself said a reason for the withdrawal was to forestall a Russian pincer movement.

Mop-up Continues
More than 550 other places were taken during the day as Soviet troops smashed westward all along the front and the Moscow communiqué said more than 5,000 Germans were killed as the Russians continued their methodical mopping up of the area east of Minsk.

An entire regiment with its commander surrendered, the war bulletin stated.

Gen. Ivan Bagramian's drive northward from Polotsk, already within a few miles of the borders of both Latvia and Lithuania, swept into more than 150 inhabited localities, including five railway stations. West and north-west of Minsk Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky's third White Russian army captured more than 300 places.

Both drives directly threatened the city of Wilno (Vilna), disputed in battle for centuries, and the communiqué disclosed fresh bombings there and at Bialystok by huge fleets of Russian bombers during the night.

Better weather was helping the Soviet air force, not only in this sector but also to the north where fighters and light bombers were sweeping back and forth over enemy positions in the Wilno area clearing the way for the advance of Red infantry.

A correspondent for the army newspaper Red Star said the broad highway leading from Mlodieczno to Wilno was littered with enemy dead and smashed-up German machines of war. He said at some points the Nazis appeared to have no organized leadership whatever.

Vancouver, Wash., July 6 (AP)—A blaze which raged through a shipyard workers' dormitory while occupants were sleeping proved fatal to two men today.

Yank Troops Close
Ring Around Nazi
Anchor In France

BY JAMES M. LONG

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, Friday, July 7 (AP)—U. S. troops closing a ring about the enemy anchor at La Haye Du Puits have stormed to the edge of the Forest De Mont Castré—where strong enemy forces lie in wait—and are threatening the last wooded heights dominating the town supreme headquarters announced last night.

Front line dispatches said the only escape route out of the road and rail junction on the south was under artillery fire, and reported savage fighting toward the heights of the forest, three miles east of La Haye, whose capture would unhinge enemy defenses resting on La Haye on the west and the bog, Marais De Gorges, on the east.

The Americans relinquished their hold on the railway station in the north part of La Haye.

In the brightest, hottest day in Normandy since D-Day, another column coming around the great bog on the east fought down the road southwest from Carant, widening this narrow sector of the whole Normandy front in an advance of more than a mile despite enemy counter-attacks.

Both British and Germans poured armor and infantry into the battle raging for Carpiquet airfield, only three miles east of Caen on the road to Paris, and the night communiqué said a number of enemy tanks were destroyed.

With the skies cleared at last, and the Allies free to throw their Sunday aerial punch at the enemy, German communications took a severe mauling as hundreds of warplanes went bombing and strafing transport, roads and rails all the way behind the front and on back to the Paris area.

Rail lines were cut by bombs at many points, fuel dumps were left blazing at Chartres, Argentan and Carentan, and distribution attacked troops massing to oppose the American push southwestward from Carant.

A dispatch from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's advanced command post declared that more and more Allied troops and vehicles—"an astonishing total"—were piling up along the beachhead for the decisive battle ahead.

In general, the Allies kept up the progress which had liberated 1,313 square miles of French soil since D-Day, just one month ago today, an average of about 43 square miles a day. The Americans liberated three towns—Glaigny, four miles southwest of La Haye, Scormant, nearby, and La Butte, six miles east at the edge of the big bog, the Marais De Gorges.

SUDDEN BLAZE

HARTFORD

Hartford, Conn., July 6 (AP)—A burst of flames in the main tent of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus brought death to at least 120 persons, many of them children, and horrible injury to many others in a disaster which officials said might ultimately result in a death toll of 200.

State Police Commissioner Edward J. Hickey, one of the 6,000 spectators in the gay audience when the first tiny flame was discovered minutes after the opening animal act, placed the number of deaths at between 175 to 200, while Clifford Fowler of the American Red Cross said in New York he had been advised that more than 200 had perished.

Arrests To Come
Tonight Police Court Prosecutor S. Burr Leikind announced he had issued warrants charging manslaughter against four officers of the circus and said other arrests might be made. The four charged were J. A. Haley, vice-president of the circus company; John Brice, circus chief of police; George W. Smith, general manager; and Leonard Aylesworth, described as chief canvas man.

By 5:15 p. m. (EWT) the huge drill shed of the state armory, quickly converted into a morgue, contained the bodies of 120 men, women and children, many of whom were trapped under the fiery canvas as it collapsed at 2:45 p. m.

Identification Difficult
The problem of identifying the dead was great. Many, if not most, of the bodies were charred beyond recognition and the flimsy garments worn by women and children offered little immediate hope of establishing identity. Only through a long and tragic process of elimination were many expected to be given names.

One hospital reported an incomplete count showed 41 injured,

PUBLIC URGED TO BUY BONDS

Sales Of "E" Bonds Are Only 32.24% Of County Quota

While the Fifth War Loan drive officially ends July 8, Delta county will receive credit for all bonds purchased and reported to the Federal Reserve Bank by July 31. Charles Hammar, Delta county chairman, announced yesterday.

Delta county is still lagging in the sale of "E" bonds to individuals. Up to July 6, sales of "E" bonds totaled $243 for a total purchase price of $172,136.25, or only 32.24 per cent of the $534,000 quota. Thirty-four "P" and "Q" bonds totaled $26,623.40, or 19.48 per cent of the $136,000 quota, while 49 other bonds were purchased, totaling $737,018.50, 89.55 per cent of the $823,000 goal.

Purchases of all bonds totaled $945,778.15, or 61.21 per cent of Delta county's general quota of $1,545,000.

"We must meet our quota," Chairman Hammar said yesterday. "What can we say to the boys when they come back if we do not do our part. Please get that 'E' bond today."

Higher-Priced Car Rations Stiffened

Washington, July 6 (AP)—All 1942 automobiles with a list price up to $2,500 will be rationed on the same basis of essentiality as are popular lower-priced hard-top automobiles, the office of price administration (OPA) announced today.

Effective July 11, the stricter ration control for higher-priced models applies to hard-top cars listed between $1,500 and $2,000 and to soft-top convertibles listed up to $2,500.

Applicants for all rationed passenger cars with a list price under $2,500 must show need of an automobile for one or more occupations listed as essential to the war effort, or public welfare such as doctors or war workers.

SUDDEN BLAZE TRAPS 6,000 DURING SHOW

and poles," he said. "Some of them were laughing and excited." Clarence E. Wilson, a business office employee of the Hartford Times, was about to quit the circus grounds after leaving his wife and child at the big tent when he saw the burst of flames that signalled the start of terrifying pandemonium.

Band Plays
The tent, he said, "went up in a puff of smoke," and within ten minutes it lay "like burnt paper as far as I can see."

"I saw rows of charred bodies lying between the burned bleachers," said Wilson, who did not learn until some time later that his wife and son had escaped safely. "They showed no evidence of being trampled on, but were scorched and burned. The heat was intense and women and children were running out of the grounds. Men were crying for their children. There was a terrible howling and screaming and panic."

Many were killed and injured, eyewitnesses said, in the rush for the exits which came even as the band began playing to allay the fears of the thousands inside the big top. In contrast, others said, circus employees went quietly and swiftly to work saving the animals and trying to restore calm.

Scores of men, women and children tried with varying success to jump from high seats. Many children were dropped bodily from elevated seats to make their way as best they could to safety.

"Their cries," said a reporter who was himself almost caught in the mass, "were awful to hear."

Wallenda Escape
For many of these children, however, there was no escape as fire enveloped them.

The five members of the famous Wallenda high wire troupe, Herman, Carl, Joe, Helen and Henrietta, were about to start their act on the high wire above the center ring when the fire started.

"When the flames hit the roof, we saw we had to get down fast," Herman said. "We slid down the ropes and headed for the performers' exit, but people were so crowded there that we saw we did not have a chance. So we climbed over the cage that lines the exit. That was easy for us—we're performers. But the public couldn't get out that way."

Felix Adler, internationally known clown who has been with the circus for 31 years, was putting on his make-up in the dressing tent when the fire began.

"We heard a roar, like the applause when one of the big acts comes off, only we knew that the animal act was over and there shouldn't be applause," he said. "We knew then that something was wrong. Then we smelled smoke. We moved everything out of the tent and then went over to see what we could do to help."

"I thought the menagerie fire in Cleveland was the worst thing I could ever see, but no one in the circus business has ever seen anything as horrible as this."

Parents Hunt Bodies
"We're out of business," Herbert Duval, adjuster for the show, said as he surveyed the ruins of the tent tonight.

As roustabouts and performers collected the charred poles, ropes, wire and equipment that littered the arena, he said that everything that remained, damaged or not, would be packed back into the train and taken straight to Sarasota, Fla., the circus's winter headquarters, as soon as the authorities would permit what is left of the show to be moved.

Tonight thousands of stunned men and women made their way through row upon row of blanket covered cots at the armory.

Fearful lest they find the one they sought, yet worried that the charred remains of a dear one might not be recognized, the sorrowing relatives carefully examined each body that came within the scope of their description.

There was no hysteria as fathers and mothers, sisters, and other near relatives walked solemnly from cot to cot, hoping, yet fearing they might recognize a ring, a bracelet, or perhaps a cross hung about a child's neck.

Parents would silently examine a small form burned beyond recognition, shake their heads, and go on. Later they might return after fruitless search, on the chance that perhaps they were wrong.

There was no confusion, no awkwardness in handling the most human side of the disaster, for the state war council force was prepared for any emergency.

Animals All Saved

Governor Baldwin remained at the armory through most of the evening, and State Police Commissioner Hickey directed activities still clad in trousers torn to the knee as he escaped from the flaming circus tent.

The solemn quiet that reigned in the armory was reflected outside for blocks around. Relatives and friends waited silently beyond the restricted limits surrounding the armory for word from inside. Even those brought to the scene through curiosity stood quietly in sympathy through the long hours of the evening.

And slowly, through the hours, as bodies were claimed and moved from the long rows, other cots were brought in from hospitals to take their places.

Roland Butler, general press agent for the show, said that as soon as the authorities permitted, the circus would return to its winter quarters at Sarasota, Fla. He expressed the belief, however, that the show could be re-equipped in time to hit the road again before the end of the summer.

All of the animals were saved and none of the circus personnel

NAVY STATION CLOSED HERE

Recruiter Transferred To Marquette; Quota
Already Filled

The naval recruiting station in Escanaba was officially closed here yesterday and Chief Machinery Mate H. W. Edgerly, U. S. N., will leave today for Marquette to assume charge of the station in that city.

The Marquette station will serve the entire upper peninsula, with traveling recruiters visiting the various communities periodically. First Class Specialist Roy Anderson, who has been assistant to Edgerly at the Escanaba station, is being transferred to Milwaukee and will leave Saturday for his new assignment.

The navy quota for the entire upper peninsula for the month of July is the smallest since the recruiting service was established during the present war expansion of navy personnel and has already been filled. Edgerly reported. The quota provided only nine men for enlistment in the regular navy and six men for enlistment in the naval reserve.

A group of 54 completed applications for enlistment in the navy and navy reserve on file at the Escanaba recruiting office will be transferred to Marquette, along with 40 incomplete applications.

Applications will continue to be accepted for men under the age of 18 and men over 38 and such men will be called to service when quotas permit. Priority in enlistment will be given to men who qualify for radio technician training.

No limitation has been placed upon the enlistment of women for the WAVES and there continues to be an urgent need for more personnel in this branch of the navy service, Edgerly reported. Women desiring information about this service or seeking enlistment may contact the recruiting station at Marquette or may contact the traveling recruiters when they visit this community periodically.

was more than slightly hurt, said Butler.

"We still have last year's big top," he explained, "and I think it can be repaired for use again this year."

Washington Island Ferry Docks Here

The "North Shore" auto-carrying ferry boat from Washington Island, docked at the Hansen & Jensen dock in Escanaba yesterday, coming here from the Island with several cars and a load of passengers. The "North Shore" is one of the two boats operated by Arni Richter between the Island and Door county (Wis.) mainland.

Included among those aboard the "North Shore" arriving here were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Richter of Escanaba, who spent the past two weeks at the Island; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Malloch of Manistique, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Malloch, Jr., of North Carolina. They drove from Escanaba to Manistique.

About July 14 or 15 the "North Shore" is scheduled to transport about 100 persons from Escanaba to Sturgeon Bay for a season's work in the cherry orchards.

Fire Hazard High In Forest Lands

The public should exercise extreme caution with fire in the woods because of the high forest fire danger at this time, it was reported yesterday from the district conservation headquarters office.

A few days of dry weather and fresh, hot winds have dried out forest and grass lands, making the fire condition hazardous.

Although no forest fires have been reported so far, conservation officers urged extreme care at this time. The absence of forest fires over the recent Fourth of July holiday week-end brought from conservation officers a comment of appreciation at the care being exercised by campers and vacationists.

James A. Spies For State Senator

Republican Ticket

JAMES A. SPIES SAYS—

I have no quarrel with any individual or group and by the same token I am not the candidate of any individual or group.

I have always followed in the more humble walks of life. I have no wealthy or powerful friends to recommend me. My case is thrown exclusively upon the independent voters of the 30th district.

The function of the legislature is to make and repeal laws. If I am elected I promise to report back to the people the business of the legislature whenever it so effects their interests.

It will be my intention to give every legislative measure all the consideration I possibly can before deciding in regard to it.

I have confidence that my honest and sincere efforts on behalf of the people will compensate them for any honor bestowed upon me.

The farmer, laborer, war veteran, businessmen and other peoples and organizations are entitled to know from their Senator when laws are about to be passed that vitally effect their interests. And this I propose to do if I am elected.

My only other promise in this campaign is that I will take the office of State Senator seriously and will give every effort I have backed by my experience, honesty and fairness to give the 30th district efficient and business-like representation.

By all means exercise your right to vote on election day. It is through the use of the ballot that we can properly make governmental changes and remedy existing wrongs.

He promises to make the business of the State Legislature your business.

MEAT DEALERS TO BE CHECKED

Survey Begins Monday
On Price, Posting
Compliance

A survey to determine the extent of compliance with price and posting regulations of the OPA will be conducted in Delta county's 48 meat stores beginning Monday, July 10. C. Emory Snyder, chairman of the local war price and rationing board has announced. It is expected that the survey will be completed by July 15.

The survey will be made by 25 price panel assistants of the local rationing board, and they will check compliance with ceiling prices on both rationed and non-rationed meats. This is the first check devoted exclusively to meat dealers and the survey is being conducted on a nationwide basis.

In addition to the check on price compliance, the survey will include a check on compliance with OPA posting regulations to ascertain whether dealers are posting their prices in conformity with the regulations.

The district office of the OPA reported yesterday that the meat price check is not a "crack down" survey, but rather a means of assisting meat dealers in meeting OPA regulations. The price panel assistants will assist merchants in interpreting the regulations, wherever that assistance is needed or desired.

the floor of the pit. These lie there until there is a lull in the firing, when the boys toss them over the rim of the pit. Next morning they are gathered up and put in boxes for eventual shipment back to America, where they are retooled for further use.

Each gun is connected by telephone to the battery command post, in a dugout. At all times one member of each gun crew has a phone to his ear. When a plane is picked up within range the battery commander gives a telephone order, "stand by!" each gun commander shouts the order to his crew, and the boys all jump to their positions.

Everybody in the crew knows his job and does it. There is no necessity for harshness or short words on the part of the gun commander. When a plane either gets shot down or goes out of range, and there is nothing else in the vicinity, the command is given, "rest!" and the crews relax and squat or lie around in the floor of the pit. But they don't leave the pit.

Sometimes the rest will be for only a few seconds. Other times it may last a couple of hours. In the long lulls the gunners wrap up in blankets and sleep on the floor of the pit—all except the man at the telephone.

It is the usual German pattern to have a lull from about 2 to 4 a. m., and then get in another good batch of bombing attempts in the last hour before dawn.

The nights are very short here now—from 11 p. m. to 5 a. m.—for which everybody is grateful. It actually starts breaking a faint dawn just about 4:30, but the Germans keep roaming around the sky until real daylight comes.

Our own patrol planes hit the sky at daylight and the Germans skeddaddle. In the first few days, when our patrol planes had to come all the way from England, they boys tell of mornings when they could see our planes approaching from one direction and the Germans heading for home at the opposite side of the sky.

As soon as it is broad daylight and the last "rest!" is given, the boys crank down the barrel of their gun until it is horizontal, and then take a sight through it onto the stone turret of a nearby barn—to make sure the night's shooting has not moved the gun off its position. Then some of them gather up the empty shells, others get wood fires started for heating breakfast, and others raise and tie the camouflage net.

They are all through at 7 a. m., and half of the shift crawl into their pup-tent beds while the other half go to work with oil, ramrod and waste cloth to clean up and readjust the gun. There will be no more shooting until darkness comes again.

Farms for Veterans

LETTERS to the folks back home indicate that the men fighting on foreign battlefields are somewhat worried over the prospects for employment for them after this war is over.

A Wells soldier, for instance, writes to inquire if some new industry will be attracted to occupy the site being vacated by the chemical plant. Others are writing about the possibilities for buying lake frontage to set themselves up in the resort business, and many are interested in taking up farming for themselves.

The agricultural committee of the Michigan Planning Commission anticipates a rather large proportion of demobilized service men will be interested in acquiring farm lands. The committee warns, however, that agriculture cannot be expected to absorb all the individuals, who will likely have developed a new or hastily formed interest in this field. It points out that agriculture has been mechanized to a high degree in recent years, which will call for less manpower than before the war. Only men with a background of practical farm experience and a full knowledge of the limits of farming should be directed to commercial farming either as owner-operators, farm managers, or tenants, the committee advises.

There are quite a number of good farms that are being farmed by aged operators, which should provide a chance for young men to take over. Men with special trade experience, such as carpenters, painters and electricians, may also have opportunities for part-time farming on small tracts while engaged in nearby industry.

However, the committee cautions against any wild rush for farmlands after the war, even though the intentions of aiding returning service men may be of the best. Such activity should be restricted to men who have a real interest and aptitude for farming; should be restricted to lands suited to farming; and should not be of sufficient magnitude to have any great effect on the volume of national output of agricultural products.

De Gaulle in Washington

A LOT of people in this country, who have been watching the European situation for months, have come to the conclusion that no matter what other qualifications General Charles de Gaulle may possess, he is, mostly, just a temperamental Frenchman. While his leadership of the so-called Fighting French is generally admitted, after all the general cannot be accepted as the spokesman for all of the French people. Citizens of France were divided into several political factions before that nation was knocked out of the war by the invading Nazi forces. In spite of years of terror and hardship under German domination, those factions still exist and the greatest problem of the Allied governments has been and remains, to find some French leader acceptable to a majority of the French people.

General de Gaulle has constantly placed personal ambition above the general good of his nation and has made the liberation of France more difficult for those directing the Allied invasion of that country. On the eve of the actual invasion, the temperamental general broke his promise to General Eisenhower, to allow leading French officers to accompany the invasion forces, in order to win the greatest possible cooperation from the people of France. His fits of temper, since Allied landings in north Africa, have been a constant source of worry to the Allied governments.

Now General de Gaulle has arrived in Washington, for what is labeled a "momentous" conference with President Roosevelt. A tremendous show has been staged, to mark his arrival, for the sole purpose of ticking the vanity of the visiting dignitary, but no one expects any lasting good to flow from the conference.

In the meantime Gen. Eisenhower's forces are going ahead with the liberation of France, in a manner that is entirely satisfactory to the people of the Allied countries, without the active aid of one who could have rendered valuable service, but who failed to deliver when the test came.

Aid to Libraries

THE Carnegie Public Library in Escanaba is among those that have qualified again for aid from the state equalization fund, having recently received a grant of $1,425.16 for the year 1943-44. Escanaba's grant was based on the 1940 federal census of 14,850 multiplied by the per capita rate of $.9561. The per capita rate is much higher this year than in former years. Part of this increase is due to the raise from $250,000 to $300,000 per year in the total state aid to public libraries. There was also a balance left in the establishment fund which was transferred to the equalization fund in accordance with state aid law. These two factors have nearly doubled the per capita rate this year.

A grant is made to a library if the per capita assessed valuation of the area of support is less than two-thirds of the average for the state. The purpose of the equalization fund is to help libraries, situated in communities with low taxing ability, to meet the standards set by the State Board for Libraries. The equalization plan is similar to that by which the so-called poorer school districts receive supplementary aid to provide a minimum standard of education for their boys and girls.

Lowers Insurance Rates

THE city of Hartford, Connecticut, in winning the 1943 fire waste contest of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, sets an example for all cities producing implements of war. The prize is a cup offered by the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

In wartime the honor of winning this contest is even greater than in peacetime due to the importance of maintaining production for the Armed Forces, which would be seriously interrupted by any major fire in one of our huge war plants.

In presenting the award, Peter J. Berry, Secretary of the National Board, says that organization has worked for many years with groups and individuals throughout the country in their efforts to reduce fire losses, "so that lives will be saved, property damage reduced and insurance costs lowered."

"That fire prevention work definitely has contributed to reducing fire insurance costs, is shown by the record. Thirty years ago the average cost, countrywide, of $100 worth of fire insurance protection, was $1.15. Today, the same amount of protection, on the average, costs 61 cents."

From these figures, it can be readily seen that while the honor of winning an award is sweet, the greatest satisfaction to any community that reduces its fire losses comes from the knowledge that in so doing it is contributing not only to the saving of life and property, but to the steady downward trend in fire insurance rates. This is of direct financial benefit to virtually every family in the land.

The greater the interest in fire prevention, the greater the return to the public.

IMPORTANT RESEARCH (Iron Mountain News)

The Toledo Blade remarks that "while the appointment of Walter L. Maxson as director of research for the Oliver Iron Mining company rates only a few lines in some newspapers, it may outrank much of the day's war news in potential importance."

The Oliver Iron Mining company is the largest operator on the Lake Superior iron ranges—the most extensive in North America. Consumption of ore is accelerated by war time demand. Surveys indicate depletion of the reserves of highest grade ore in eight or 10 years, after which ore must be imported, or the enormous domestic deposits of leaner ores must be utilized. They can be, and have been, utilized, but at excessive cost for production and beneficiation.

Mr. Maxson will give his time to cooperation with other engineers to experiments in concentration of leaner ore for low cost production of high grade metal.

The importance of this research to industry and to future military operations is such that government cooperation would be more than justified. The continuing economical operation of the midwest steel industry and of more than 300 bulk freight ships on the Great Lakes will be, to a considerable extent, dependent upon the results of the work undertaken by Professor Maxson and his associates.

World War In The Air

BY MAJOR A. P. de SEVERSKY

The German robot plane or "flying bomb" has been generally tagged in the press as a nuisance weapon. This assignment to a secondary place is justified. Though the device is ingenious and another proof of German scientific skill, the manner in which it is being applied cannot possibly prove decisive.

This is fairly typical of the history of German weapons in this war. It is on the whole a history of rather remarkable technical achievement throttled down by military short-sightedness. We have reason to be grateful to fate for this flaw in the German military mentality.

Every country, including our own, is trying to prove that its own scientists were the first to invent the robot airplane. Nearly all of them are telling the truth, since the idea has been familiar to aviation circles for many years. In this particular case, Germany has not "invented" anything. But there is no point in denying that the Germans were the first to put it into practice.

In our day and age a really new discovery very seldom occurs. The basic principles is often a reflection of their needs and their military philosophy. The self-confidence of the Western nations, and the conservatism of their military leaders, held them back in the matter of technical innovations.

—GERMANS PULL SURPRISES—

The Germans, it should be acknowledged, have sprung one technological surprise after another. Fortunately they have been backward in the tactical and strategic application of their new weapons as consistently as they have been ahead in devising them. This in turn gave us the possibility to neutralize their scientific advantage through our greater quantity and better strategy.

If the Germans had matched their military innovations with proper strategy, the war might have ended in their favor as early as 1940. Had we directed our quantitative advantages into the proper strategic channels, the war might have ended with victory for our side in 1942. But both belligerent groups were timid in the exploitation of aerial warfare, thus prolonging the struggle for years.

The Nazis were the first to recognize the potentialities of modern air power and the first to build a war machine geared for the extensive use of aviation. Luckily for us, they failed to envision the new force as a strategic instrument, concentrating instead on the narrow tactical use of the airplane, mainly as a dive bomber, to clear a path for the ground forces.

The four-engine bomber, which has served us so well as a strategic weapon, was first put into combat use in this war by the Germans. They had a big lead in using heavy long-range bombers of great load-carrying capacity. Instead of designing and massing them for strategic assault on the British Isles, they applied them almost entirely to harassment of Allied shipping in the Atlantic. As soon as we were able to throw an aerial umbrella over the ocean, these long-range Focke-Wulf Kuriers were swept out of the air. They did not have enough armament and were not used in sufficient quantity—again, tactical and strategical short-sightedness.

Similarly the Germans were first to develop so-called assistant take-off: a rocket device that thrusts a plane forward, enabling it to go into the air with larger loads. It was feared that they might apply this principle to the entire Nazi bombardment, thus making up for failure to build larger bombers. Nothing of the sort happened. The rocket-type assistant was scientifically remarkable, its tactical results negligible.

—ROCKET PLANE MISUSED—

The aerial rocket torpedo was another German "first." Known to all engineers in principle, Germany took the lead in reducing it to practice. What saved us was that this weapon came somewhat too late, when we had already begun to curtail German industry by our bombing and had gathered sufficient industrial momentum to absorb aerial losses.

The robot plane, again, is a scientific achievement that is destined to fall flat because of military misuse. After all, this weapon is just a torpedo that travels through air instead of water, and at vastly greater speed. Suppose the ordinary water torpedo were chained exclusively to coastal artillery installations. Its use would be extremely limited and its accuracy in attacking a very great distance would be negligible. Far greater effect has been obtained by bringing the torpedo on a fast-moving ship—such as a destroyer—closer to the scene of action and launching it at shorter range with greater accuracy.

The present robot plane will no longer be a mere nuisance weapon but a powerful threat when it is fired not from stationary platforms at enormous distances, but from fast-moving planes at relatively closer range. It will then be used not only against ground targets but even more so against planes in the air and ships on the sea. Objectives which can now be armored against vertically falling bombs with very little velocity will be demolished by these enormous flying missiles, fired from all directions—horizontally as well as vertically—striking with speed greater than the muzzle velocity of a modern gun.

Though introduced rather inauspiciously by the Germans, these jet and rocket propelled "flying bombs" are destined to give aircraft greater fire power than any weapon that moves on land or sea.

The railroads had to stand for the heavy holiday travel that they warned against—not to mention a lot of the travelers.

CUT-OVER LAND—Occasionally it would be good for all of us to evaluate and reevaluate our resources and our economic future.

Every industry of any consequence has its annual inventory. As a result of this inventory the business manager knows what has been accomplished in the past, what the present status of his business is, and can plan more wisely for the future.

The Upper Peninsula is a cut-over area. It cannot be described otherwise, although about 80 per cent of the Upper Peninsula's area is still covered with forests of one type or another. But most of the merchantable timber has been taken, and to consider the future of the area without realizing that lumbering is now little more than an echo of the past would be unfortunately optimistic.

Diversification alone is the answer to the economic problems that beset the Upper Peninsula during the depression period, and continue to plague us even in this wartime inflationary period.

We must have forests, factories, farms. We must offer resorts, recreation and rest. We cannot forget the natural resources of our area—the fish in the lakes, the ore in the ground.

Considering all of these factors it becomes clear that, because of the very diversity of our region, there must be an over-all plan of development for the future which will look upon diversity with favor rather than with disapproval or indifference. Somewhere along the line of future development there must be a wedding of interests and a pooling of minds if the Upper Peninsula is to be nearly self-supporting.

Perhaps the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, if it swept some of the cobwebs out of its mental attic, could accomplish this.

ENCOURAGING—The suggestion that the U. P. Development Bureau might be the organization to accomplish such a unified plan for diversity is made because the Bureau has a long background of service to the area. The reference to its mental cobwebs is not meant to detract from this history of service, but to direct attention to the need for greater service in the future.

The Development Bureau was born as a land-settlement promotion organization. That was back in the days when the Upper Peninsula was advertised as Cloverland, and thousands of acres of land unsuitable for agriculture were unloaded on prospective farmers who were starved out, and many of whose sons and daughters added to our depression-period relief problem.

When it became all too apparent that much of our cut-over land was unfit for farming, and certainly for the small farmer, the Development Bureau switched to advertising and encouraging our tourist and resort industry. For more than a score of years the Bureau has helped nurture a business that, unfortunately often failed to appreciate what was being done for it.

The foregoing paragraphs do not indicate that good has not been accomplished—but the good has been mixed with bad. Likewise it should be pointed out that thousands of acres of good farm land were settled by Bureau encouragement, and millions of dollars of tourist revenue were brought here by tourist advertising.

The war brought the tourist business to its knees. The Bureau turned part of its program to encouragement of agriculture, for while the war made the tourist business a casualty, it brought a greater measure of prosperity to those engaged in food production. Thus the tourist business and farming have been combined in the Bureau's development program.

THE CLEARING HOUSE—Adequately staffed and with a properly integrated program, the effectiveness of a true Upper Peninsula Development Bureau would be enormously increased. It could be a clearing house for development plans, for consideration and judgment and recommendation.

It could enlarge its scope of activity to include the encouragement of new industries to locate in the Upper Peninsula—always with thought in mind that a new industry is not a goal, but an initial step; and with full consideration of all the factors that would help make both new and long-established industries successful.

The Bureau under such an over-arching plan, and with cooperation from industrial and civic leaders, could practically assure materials and labor. Through encouragement of cooperative action it could bring better housing for labor, better production for industry, and a more prosperous Upper Peninsula.

In line with an industrial program it could encourage the study of water-power development for the whole Upper Peninsula area, of which there is plenty. Appropriate state and federal agencies should be consulted and urged to make the necessary studies to determine power possibilities, so that factual information would be immediately available. The development of hydroelectric power serves a two-fold purpose: 1. It provides cheaper electric power so essential to industry; 2. It helps maintain water levels so important to recreation and forest areas.

The post-war period promises to be one of great development for the nation and the Upper Peninsula. Unless there is some organization studying the needs of an area, that area may lose some of the most outstanding benefits to be derived from any state or federal program which may be established. People of the Upper Peninsula should by this time know that its future depends upon its over-all prosperity. One area cannot be "blighted" without affecting the others. The future of the Upper Peninsula depends upon an integrated and coordinated development program.

THE LYONS DEN

NEW YORK—Col. Carlos P. Romulo, who addressed the Republican Convention, also will address the Democratic one . . . Three years ago, incidentally, Col. Romulo enrolled his 17-year-old son at Culver. Before the youngster could leave for school, the war broke out. The boy last was seen at Bataan. . . . Last week Col. Romulo made a speech at Culver. The Commandant directed Romulo's attention to the students seated on the left. There was one empty chair among them. This chair was covered with a Philippine flag. "Your son would have been in the class with those boys," said the Commandant. "We've been keeping that chair for him."

JACK DEMPSEY visited a hospital ward where he saw a Coast Guardsman whose nose had been operated upon by expert plastic surgeons. "So you're going to have a pretty little nose," said Dempsey, who once had his pugnose prettified by plastic surgery. "Just let me give you this bit of advice: Don't let anyone touch it the first few weeks." . . . Dempsey then revealed his own experience. After his nose operation, he went to a crowded street where he was mobbed by fans. One lady, carrying a child, rushed up to Dempsey and said: "Baby, let the champ kiss you." She held up the infant, which struggled and swung its tiny fists—against Dempsey's new nose. And the heavyweight champ then needed another plastic operation, because the baby broke Jack's still-fragile new nose.

Downey told him the publisher's address and asked: "How many copies are you buying?" Col. Daly said: "100,000 copies"—which will make it the largest single purchase in the history of Tin Pan Alley.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Lt. Col. Robert S. Allen now on active service with the Army)

Washington—Many people long have suspected the President of being a very patient man as far as Winston Churchill and the old-fashioned British Empire are concerned. Just how patient he is, however, has just leaked out. It is now learned that at one time the President sent a letter to Mahatma Gandhi in India which the British would not permit Gandhi to receive.

Roosevelt wrote the letter to Gandhi approximately a year and a half ago. It was a friendly, conciliatory message, urging Indian Nationalist cooperation with the Allies in the war.

Ambassador William Phillips, FDR's special envoy to India, tried to deliver the letter personally, but the British flatly refused permission. Gandhi was then in jail, and when Ambassador Phillips asked to be permitted to see him, the British said no. They were polite but firm. Phillips was not allowed to see either Gandhi or any other of the imprisoned Nationalist leaders.

When efforts were made to deliver the letter through the British themselves, the British again refused.

Despite the fact that the United States was sending lend-lease weapons to protect India, was using U. S. troops in North India to help ward off the Japanese, and was using other U. S. troops in the Southwest Pacific to protect Australia, the British would not permit a personal letter from the President of their chief ally to be delivered to Gandhi.

Later Ambassador Phillips talked to Prime Minister Churchill about the whole matter when Churchill was in Washington in the summer of 1943. But he got nowhere with Churchill on any phase of the Indian problem. On another occasion, the President himself tried to urge a more liberal British policy toward India, but Churchill was almost insulting. He virtually told FDR to mind his own business.

Ambassador Phillips was so incensed at the whole thing that he advised the President it was futile for him or anyone else to go back to India as envoy.

In the last few days, however, the question of delivering the letter to Gandhi has been revived. The Indian saint has now been released from jail, and it may be that the British will let down the bars and permit the President of the United States to send him a letter.

NOTE—Ambassador Phillips once served in Canada, now is serving in London, is generally considered pro-British.

—KNOTHOLES IN GOP PLATFORM—
It was carefully hushed up at Chicago, but some of the backstage hammering on the Republican platform nearly developed knotholes. One was on Palestine.

The GOP foreign affairs subcommittee voted to omit a plank for restoring Palestine to the Jews. When this came before the full platform committee, however, things began to pop.

Leo R. Sack, Roosevelt's ex-Minister to Costa Rica, now Zionist publicity man, prodded Senator Danaher of Connecticut. Danaher demanded that the Palestine resolution be restored. Also Cleveland's Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, who supported the GOP ticket in 1940, made an impassioned plea, said a Palestine resolution would be a great vote-getter for the Dewey ticket.

In the end it was restored. An even greater rumprump occurred over silver. A potent Western bloc of silver boosters succeeded in wedging into the first platform draft a statement favoring silver.

They were so strong that it looked as if silver would win. Finally Neil Caruthers, dean of Lehigh University and economic adviser to the committee, got on the telephone and called Winthrop Aldrich, cousin of John D. Rockefeller and head of the Chase National Bank.

Aldrich, a staunch gold-standard man, got busy on the long-distance telephone, pleaded with platform committee members to resist the silver bloc. Finally, when it looked as if silver would win, Aldrich warned that he would take the matter up with Albany.

In the end, the taxation and finance committee yielded, let Aldrich dictate the following statement by telephone: "We shall maintain the value of the American dollar and regard the payment of Government debt as an obligation of honor which prohibits any policy leading to the depreciation of the currency."

NOTE—The late Senator Key Pittman of Nevada used to put foreign delegates to the London Economic Conference to sleep with his long lectures on silver. He was largely responsible for selling silver to Roosevelt.

—FLASHES FROM CHICAGO—

The convention's forgotten man: ex-Vice-President Charles G. Dawes. Once the hero of the Dawes Plan for reparations settlement, famous for his up-side-down pipe and his "hell-n-Maria" language, he stood back of the speakers' platform, unsmiling, unapplauding, unnoted, while the crowd welcomed Herbert Hoover, the man who sent him to London as Ambassador. . . . The convention's most nervous man: Publisher Roy Howard, attired in star-spangled shirt, nearly having heart failure when his hero, Herbert Hoover, couldn't get the microphones to work. Rushing one of his writers, Henry J. Taylor, to the stage, Roy had him straighten out the microphones while Hoover was in the middle of his speech, pantomimed back and forth regarding the sound effects. Spectators almost thought that Roy himself was making the speech.

A lot of the gals have discovered that hot weather isn't so bad if you undress properly for it.

NO CALL FOR PREINDUCTION

Next Examination Will Be Held In August, Board Reports

There will be no pre-induction examination this month for Delta county draft registrants, the local selective service board reported yesterday, following receipt of this information from the state headquarters.

The Delta county board was advised that the next pre-induction call will be for August and probably will be the first week of the month. The quota will probably be approximately the same as that for June, the state headquarters informed local board officials.

The June call here was for more than 100 registrants, a number considerably greater than the local board was able to provide under the age of 26 years.

Travelers who have Pullman reservations for July may have them revoked if large numbers of wounded are returned to this country from Normandy, transportation officials warn.

Pratas Island, 300 miles northwest of Luzon, is horseshoe shaped.

Democratic Convention Promises To Be Lively

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Chicago—Now that the last Republican delegate has been dug out of the Stevens hotel and sent on his way home, the stage is being set for the Democratic convention to be held here beginning July 19.

The second "draft" promises in many ways to be more stereotyped than the one which produced Governor Dewey out of a slightly transparent hat. There is a strong possibility, as has previously been suggested in this column, that President Roosevelt will declare his willingness to submit to the "draft" of a large majority of the delegates already pledged to the fourth term before the Democrats assemble in Chicago.

Some Fireworks Expected While the ratification of Roosevelt for first place on the ticket will be a formality, contentious Democrats promise to produce fireworks that will make the next big political rally far from the dull affair just ended. Professional trouble-makers will be on hand to see to it that all is not harmony as, on the surface at least, it was with the Republicans.

Take the little matter of the vice-presidential nomination, for example. Here the Democrats are likely to run into a major quarrel. If he follows the schedule drawn up for him before he left, Vice President Wallace will return to this country from his far Eastern trip on July 11 or 12. His port of entry, according to the schedule is to be Seattle.

There, not long after his arrival, he plans to give a major address, on a nationwide radio hook-up, dealing with his tour. In that talk he will stress the great future of the states on the Pacific slope, particularly in the development of vast new trade, by air and by sea, with a revitalized China and with the new industrialized Siberia that Wallace has been allowed to see as a guest of the Soviet Union.

Opposition to Wallace This will be Wallace's dramatic bid for renomination as vice president. It is possible, too, that he may have one or more diplomatic triumphs to announce at the same time.

The opposition to the shy, gangling Iowa within his own party is of course, tremendous. Conservative Democrats in the south look on him as the epitome of all that is wrong and radical. Conceivably they might call off their carefully staged southern "revolt" if Wallace were thrown to the wolves.

New dealers such as Attorney General Francis Biddle and his good friend "Tommy the Cork" Corcoran also are opposed to Wallace. They are saying that, if anything happened to the president and Wallace were to succeed him, the same thing would happen as happened to Andrew Johnson when he stepped into Abraham Lincoln's big shoes. Congress would destroy him as it destroyed poor Andy Johnson.

Regarding themselves as practical politicians, these new dealers reflect the views of the party bosses such as Hague of New Jersey and Flynn of the Bronx. They swallowed Wallace in 1940, but this time it will have to be a case of forcible feeding if the president insists.

Liberals Back Wallace Robert Hannegan, Democratic National chairman by Roosevelt's wish, is reported to have told the president that it would be next to impossible to get enough votes to put Wallace over even if the White House were publicly to express a preference. A regular Democrat himself, Hannegan is said to share the bosses' feeling against Wallace, the intellectual.

SUPPLIES LAND ON SPRING Wooden boxes tied with special steel wire are now being dropped 10,000 feet or more without a parachute to deliver food and medical necessities to Allied troops in every theater of war. A strong, alloy steel wire, acts as shock absorber to the free-falling box, which bounces about 30 feet into the air when it first hits.

Delta County Children Leave For Bay Cliffs

Thirteen Delta county children left Wednesday, July 5, for the Bay Cliff health camp in Marquette county and will spend six weeks at the camp. Dr. M. A. Elstein, director of the Delta county health department, reported yesterday.

Mrs. Alma Christensen, R. N., Delta county health nurse, accompanied the children to the Bay Cliffs camp and presented them to Elba Morse, camp director. The children selected for the camp follow: Elsie and Albert Anderson, Ensign; Joyce Smith, Gladstone; Buddy Poquette, Gladstone Route One; Thora Hanson, Lathrop; Gladys Raudell, Gladstone; Phelix Miljour, reynolds; Mildred Ketcham, Gladstone; Joyan Ann Bichler, Eleanor Nelson, Donna Mae Kholmman, Royan Ray and Jack Benson, all of Escanaba.

These children, along with 150 other children from the various counties of the upper peninsula, will enjoy six weeks of camp life where they will be given an opportunity to improve their physical condition. The children have been recommended for attendance at the camp by their family physicians, Dr. Zallenga of the Crippled Children's hospital and Dr. Cooperstock, of the Children's Clinic at Marquette.

The camp is maintained by the Children's Fund and is supervised by trained physical directors, nutritionists, physicians and nurses.

"Oh, we never call 'Information' any more!"

ANYTHING you can do to cut down calls to "Information" helps.

Three out of every five calls to "Information" are for numbers listed in the telephone directory. Just answering these unnecessary requests consumes 1,077 hours of operator and switchboard time in Michigan every day. If they could be avoided, 3 out of every 5 "Information" operators could be doing other important jobs on the war-busy telephone system.

You can help—these two ways:

1. Please look in the directory for the number you want.
2. If the number isn't listed, and you must call "Information," jot it down so you'll have it the next time.

PROCLAMATIONExtends "Save Michigan's Honor" Day Through Saturday

By proclamation of Mayor Walter Burns of Manistique, the drive to "Save Michigan's Honor" has been extended here over Friday and Saturday, July 7 and 8. The state-wide drive to meet the Michigan quota of war bond sales in the fifth war loan drive, originally scheduled for Thursday is intended to sell the 49 per cent of the series E bond quota that has not yet been purchased.

All retailers have been asked to cooperate in the effort by urging all their customers to buy bonds.

The mayor's proclamation follows:

Our country is at war! Millions of our young men and women are in the armed forces. Some of them have made the supreme sacrifice, others have paid and will continue to pay throughout the years that may be granted them. The dead, the living dead shattered in mind and body, the crippled, those who fought, those who are fighting, tired and weary, those who are in training for whatever service they may be called upon to render; they served and are serving that we Americans and all liberty-loving people may continue to enjoy the privileges of freedom and democracy.

Now, therefore, let us show our appreciation for their services, demonstrating our loyalty, our patriotism and love of country, by investing in the Fifth War Loan on July 7 or 8 when this community joins in the state-wide campaign to "Save Michigan's Honor."

Walter Burns, Mayor.

CITY TAXES
RAISED $1.25Raise Due To The Drop
In The Valuation
Of City Property

City taxes payable now at the city hall are up $1.25 this year. A total of 20 mills or $20 per thousand will be charged. Of the total 20 mills, 16.79 which will raise a total of $60,677.75 will go into the general city fund. The remaining 3.21 mills will accumulate a total of $11,593.75 for the bond and interest fund. The two together will furnish the $72,271.50 necessary to operate the city for the year 1944-45.

A $169,000 drop in the total valuation figure for city property is said to be the cause of the raise. Last year the valuation was $3,782,575 whereas this year it is $3,613,575. Every year there are some individual increases and some decreases in valuation, the city office explained. This year, the decreases authorized by the board of review predominated.

Local police have set the deadline for bicycle license purchase as July 15. After that date, any bicycle found without a license will be picked up.

To date, according to the city office, only 124 licenses have been purchased of the 400 that are on hand. Last year, a total of 350 were purchased by bike owners. Price of the license which is good for one year is 25 cents. The license is a small metal plate which is fastened on the frame of the bicycle with a metal clamp. Purpose of the license is to help the police locate stolen bikes.

When an owner purchases a license, he is required to fill out a small card giving the license tag number, name, address, and phone number of the owner, name of the bike, color of the frame and serial number of frame, color of fenders, model, and accessories. The card is then placed on file with the police department so that in the event that it be stolen, the police by looking up the card will know what to look for.

ALL-OUT BOND SELLING PUSH

One-Third Of "E" Bond
Quota Sold; 48 Hour
Phone Drive On

Stirred by the fact that the county's E bond quota is only about one-third sold and faced with the hard fact that the official end of the Fifth War Loan drive is only 48 hours away, City Chairman Gust Asp yesterday rallied his bond selling forces for a whirlwind all-out drive to put the city and county over the top.

His call met with immediate and heartening response for a group of Escanaba Woman's club members have volunteered to aid the Majorettes in a telephone campaign. The group is headed by Mrs. E. A. Wenner, chairman, and includes the following: Mrs. Bruce Brackett, Mrs. Herbert Leighton, Mrs. F. G. Shepek, Mrs. George McEwen, Mrs. O. V. Thatcher, Mrs. Thaxter Shaw, Mrs. Harlan Yelland, Mrs. O. L. McCormick, Mrs. Fred Carlson, Mrs. M. J. Tonkin, Mrs. Harry Gruber, Mrs. Fred Fisher and Mrs. Henry Wyllie.

Expressing a belief that the principal need is that people must be contacted and acquainted with the fact that bonds must be bought now, Chairman Asp said: "When you've caught all you can—Help Sell! Check with your friends, neighbors, relatives. There may be someone you know who is waiting to be called upon, or who may be willing to buy more, now that it is known that the city and county faces failure to meet its quota in the Fifth War Loan drive. Every extra bond you help someone else buy will do as much as your own extra purchases in upholding the honor of the city and county and that of the state too. This is everybody's job—and time is short! Buy extra bonds; sell extra bonds!"

"If the people of Escanaba and the rest of the county rise to the task and meet the E bond quota quickly they still have a chance of being the first county in the peninsula to do so."

"We can do it and we must do it," Asp urges all bond selling forces. In a last desperate attempt to stir the people of the city and county, Asp has set up the plan whereby the Woman's club group and the Majorettes are calling all possible persons by telephone and urging them to buy bonds. To the public he adds the word, "Don't wait to be called, come down and buy your bonds today. The telephone cannot reach everyone; do your bit to sell as well as buying your own bonds."

STEPHEN D. BAKRAN

POSTHUMOUS AWARD—Stephen D. Bakran, aviation radio-man second class, U. S. Navy, of Wells, Mich., who died in the crash of his bullet-riddled plane, has been commended posthumously by the chief of naval personnel, the Navy has disclosed.

The citation reads: "For outstanding devotion to duty as radio-man and gunner serving aboard a United States Navy scout bomber during an attack on enemy shipping in Bodo Harbor, Norway, October 4, 1943. Courageous and determined in the face of intense anti-aircraft fire from shore batteries and ships. Bakran rendered skillful and valuable service, maintaining persistent and accurate fire on the target in spite of repeated hits sustained by his aircraft and valiantly manning his gun until a large caliber burst of enemy fire caused his plane to crash. Bakran's gallant conduct throughout the engagement contributed materially to the success of the attack and was in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backaches quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about a pint a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or early passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

IT IS OUR DUTY TO VOTE NEXT TUESDAY.
IT IS OUR DUTY TO VOTE FOR SOMEONE WHO WILL REPRESENT US.

We can vote for a man who inherited a lot of money and send him back to Congress to represent the big money group just like he has for 5½ years.

We can vote for a man who is tied to the Political Action Committee of one of our largest pressure groups

We can vote for a man who has made a success of his business and his farm; who has lived all his life in this District, and has worked for all of his living and knows all the problems of doing so, and the problems of small business. He is not a career politician or tied to any pressure group.

TO BE REPRESENTED WE MUST VOTE FOR

Escanaba Council In Brief Session

The Escanaba city council met last night in brief session, with Mayor Sam Wickman presiding. City Manager George E. Bean, who is in Lansing attending a meeting of the state advisory tax study committee of which he is a member, was represented at the meeting by City Engineer A. V. Aronson.

City Councilman Henry Wyllie, absent from the city, was excused for last night's session and for other meetings which he may be unable to attend for the next few weeks.

The council by resolution approved the vacating of four feet of city property inside the sidewalk for 300 feet in the 400 block, First avenue north. This will permit the Delta Hardware company to have a wider alleyway between its main building and a warehouse to be constructed this summer.

The sale of a lot owned by the city was approved and the clerk was authorized to advertise for bids, with the city's minimum price set at $250. The lot is about 50 by 50 feet, and is located at the southeast corner of Tenth street and Fourth avenue.

Pay of inspectors and clerks for the primary election Tuesday was set at $6 and $4, respectively, the same as in the last city election.

A request by Dailey Brothers three-ring circus to show in Escanaba on Tuesday, July 18, was approved by the council and a license will be issued on payment of the $75 fee. The circus is scheduled to show at Ludington and 21st streets.

The council requested the clerk to advise the circus manager that no gambling or obscene shows will be permitted, and that the circus must carry public liability insurance.
